The hub and spoke system of distribution, adopted by SPEX, is recognised in the logistics industry as being the most reliable and cost effective. Enhanced by our investment in the latest technology, consignments are continually traceable from collection point to the final destination.

The SPEX despatch paperwork is straightforward and user-friendly, while proof of delivery is immediately available on request. The SPEX computerised despatch system improves cost and time efficiency while providing detailed management information.

Our customer service staff will always be available should you need advice on the most suitable service, relative to the urgency of your consignment and its destination.

From the moment we collect, the responsibility for your consignment hands over to us. Now you can relax in the knowledge that your goods are secure and speeding on their way to final delivery.
